The recipient will present the required documentation to Hazelton Secondary School for payment.

SCHOLARSHIP CONTEXT:

Jodi Rush was a strapping young lad who towered over most of his New Hazelton classmates from an early age. He was outgoing, loved meeting new people and was very kind-hearted, always looking out for those who needed help. He hated to see injustice and disrespect - he had no issues speaking up for himself or others when it was necessary.

He was most happy when he was elbow-deep into a new project - he was a true hands-on learner. His interests were diverse. As a teenager, he loved debating about current events and politics, cooking with his mom (who is a stellar chef), rebuilding engines with his best friend Mike, camping/fishing/hunting (Mike and Jodi spent many weekends 'living off the land' at Bell Lake), and creating new products in the woodworking shop with his teacher, Mr. Blackburn.

At the same time, Jodi seriously struggled with bullying from peers and with school life in general. He lived with an undiagnosed learning disability until he was 16, which had serious implications for all aspects of traditional learning. Thanks to his mom's tireless pursuit of help for him, his 'print disability' was identified in grade 11, and it transformed his school performance and his self-esteem. He qualified for a scribe - someone to explain printed text and to write down Jodi's dictated responses to questions and homework assignments. As a result, Jodi went from barely passing most classes to being an honour roll student.

Because he had so many setbacks in academic classes, Jodi naturally gravitated to any school subjects that didn't involve text. He found his groove in the woodworking shop, where he created beautiful and useful items for friends and family. He even won first prize in a Northern BC Forestry Innovations competition where students were challenged to create products with low-grade wood or recycled products. His creation was an armchair made from spalted poplar that had been felled in a brushing program and left as waste-wood. He designed and built seats and backs for his chairs from seatbelt strapping reclaimed from cars left at the New Hazelton dump.

When he graduated from Hazelton Secondary School, Jodi very much wanted to become a journeyman carpenter. He started out at the College of New Caledonia in Prince George. Unfortunately, he didn't feel comfortable asking for a scribe at college, and without the help, he was unable to complete his first year. His future was determined by a phone call from the mother of a Hazelton friend, who encouraged him to come to Grande Prairie in northern Alberta to work in the natural gas business.

This turned out to be a good decision. By the time he was in his late 20's, he was a crew supervisor and had demonstrated his strong inter-personal and leadership skills by training and developing a loyal team of field staff. He also became an avid reader! His life was sadly cut too short, at 31 years of age, in a motorcycle accident while he was on vacation on Vancouver Island. Many people miss him, and it's hoped that this scholarship will allow others to pursue their own passions and goals, in his memory.
